

A quick note from the author:

I compiled this document to help me and some fellow policy wonks make sense of the various programs. I realized that a plain-language version might have broader interest so I made this public.

If you are requesting access to edit, my answer is no. This is not a wiki. You could make your own document too!

If you contact me for my ok to use this document, for example to create a website, 1) Don't charge people money for information, 2) Don't present the information from this guide as your own and 3) Don't make it look like I have endorsed your website. Here's some wording you should use:

“This website has been adapted from information compiled and published freely by Dr. Jennifer Robson, Associate Professor of Political Management at Carleton University. You can read the original document here: <https://t.co/m0dXFYIZwk?amp=1>. Dr. Robson is not affiliated with this website or its publishers. Any errors or omissions in adapting Dr. Robson's are the sole responsibility of [your website name].”

If you want to translate the document, please do. Again, it would nice if you used similar wording to the above.

Yes, I'm updating as often and quickly as I can.

No, I'm not available to give webinars to your organization or membership. I'm sorry.

No, I'm not able to give personalized advice. I'm sorry. I've included links below of other places you can call for answers to questions about your personal circumstances.

The benefits listed here are for people who really need them. This isn't a time to try to grab all the money you can. These are programs for people who otherwise won't make ends meet. If you need help, there is help available. No one needs to hoard. Not toilet paper, not money.

If you get a text message saying the Canada Revenue Agency has money for you, that is a scam. Other than Emergency/Amber Alerts, governments do NOT text you. Here's a link to the National Anti-Fraud Centre: <https://www.antifraudcentre-centreantifraude.ca/index-eng.htm>

Governments across the country are working hard and doing as much as they can as fast as they can. I know it can feel slow and confusing, but here's a big thank you to everyone in public services and in every political party who is working to help.

I'm self-employed. What income benefits can I get ?
Do you pay yourself a salary with payroll deductions including EI premiums?	AS OF APRIL 6, THERE WILL BE JUST ONE APPLICATION SITE FOR BOTH CERB AND EI SICKNESS OR REGULAR BENEFITS. GO TO WWW.CANADA.CA No: You could apply for the Canada Emergency Response Benefit. See the information above.  Yes: As of April 6, you'll be able to get CERB instead of EI Sickness or EI Regular benefits. If CERB runs out for your, you may be able to apply for EI regular benefits. You can apply for CERB through Service Canada. See the information above. Good to know: Self-employed workers can opt-in to Employment Insurance special benefits including Sickness benefits. But you have to pay-in for 12 months before collecting benefits. If you have a computer, you can learn more about how to apply to be covered by the EI special benefits here:  https://www.canada.ca/en/services/benefits/ei/ei-self-employed-workers.html
Do you have children?	Yes: Make sure you are receiving any Canada Child Benefit and GST Credit that you are entitled to. These are going to be topped up soon. See the information above. No: Depending on your income, you might still qualify for the GST Credit or the Canada Workers' Benefit. If you have a computer, you can check online here:  https://www.canada.ca/en/revenue-agency/services/child-family-benefits.html

I'm a college or university student and I was counting on my summer job to pay tuition in the fall. What do I do?
Did you work for pay (including self-employment or gig-work) in 2019 or in the last 12 months?	Yes
Did you make $5K in that work (including self-employment) or more in 2019 or in the last 12 months?	Yes	No
Since March 15, have you stopped working for 14 days in a row?	Yes	No, I was only planning to start work in the summer
	You might be eligible for the Canada Emergency Response Benefit. See the information above.	It sounds like you've had other resources to help you cover your essential costs like shelter, food and more. Are those resources (help from parents, education savings, student loans) still available to you? Right now, most governments are trying to help people in emergencies who have lost their regular income to support themselves and their families. Have you considered applying for student financial assistance to help you with the costs of your education? You might be able to get grants (you don't pay back at all) and low-cost loans (you don't pay back until you finish school) from the Government of Canada or your province/territory. You can get more information here:  https://www.canada.ca/en/services/benefits/education/student-aid/grants-loans.html Have you contacted the student financial office of your college or university to ask what they are doing to help students who are worried about how to pay tuition and other fees? Look for the email address online because it is unlikely anyone is in the campus office right now. You can also contact the student association of your university or college and ask for their help in getting answers. You may be able to get a job through the revised Canada Summer Jobs Program. Employers can get up to a 100% wage subsidy (to a maximum of the local minimum wage) for jobs (full-time or part-time) starting as soon as May 11, 2020 and ending as late as February 28, 2021. Employers might be essential services or might adapt their work to the public health rules for COVID19. Interested students can apply at: https://www.jobbank.gc.ca/home Employers
